Jack LaRochelle, Public Works Director, introduced the participants and consultants and provided background information. He reviewed the project site for both the Civic Center Campus and the private development and explained the details of the Exclusive Negotiations Agreement (ENA). He stated the ENA provides the terms by which the City and Plenary Properties Napa (PPN) will negotiate and execute the necessary project agreements. He further detailed the necessary terms and conditions of the ENA.

Bob Gamble, the City's financial consultant, provided information regarding the financing structure of the project

Mr. LaRochelle explained the affordable housing obligations, swing space options, and the financial resources that the City would need regarding legal, financial, architectural, and environmental and planning support.

Mayor Techel called for public comment.

Britt Risley, representing Napa/Solano Building Trades and Labor Council, asked that both building trades and the central labor council be included in the project.

Council questions and comments ensued relative to prevailing wage, swing space options, community input, affordable housing, the public and the private details of the development, and financing and design options.

Stuart Marks, PPN, stated PPN had not yet selected a contractor for the private development, but they would develop a short list of contractors that would comply with the requirements of the ENA. He stated it was clear that prevailing wage was consistent for the public portion of the project.
